It is unlikely you will find an accurate figure. It would need to consider datacenter power usage, whether the request is parallelized, which GPU is running it, how long the prompt runs for, and a bunch of other variables.

I don't want accurate, i want an estimate even if it's a wild one. I mean someone has to have some knowledge about this, right? It takes like a minute or two for it to respond so I am assuming it's going through tokens like candy

So you just want something made up? Make it up yourself. 🤖
