

is C.ai bad for the environment?

Posted by u/J_does-Art • 0 points • 13 comments i've been seeing a LOT about how ChatGPT is bad for the environment and is using a lot of water even for one chat, is Character.Ai the same?

chatgpt APPARENTLY used 16ml of water per request wether that's true or not i don't know but i do know it is effecting stuff one way or another and i kinda need to know if C.ai is the same, i've stoped using it for the time being until i know as i don't want to contribute to it.

TLDR;
is C.Ai bad for the environment like ChatGPT is

Comments

u/MechaGodzilla876 • 1 points • 2025-01-20 20:47 UTC

... what the fuck did I just read...?

u/J_does-Art • 1 points • 2025-01-20 22:48 UTC

sorry if my grammar or spelling is bad 😊

i was asking about something i've heard about, AI using a lot of natural resources to function that in turn hurts the environment

u/MechaGodzilla876 • 1 points • 2025-01-20 22:49 UTC

I dunno man.

u/J_does-Art • 1 points • 2025-01-20 22:49 UTC

exactly why i asked the community as i didn't know ether

u/MechaGodzilla876 • 1 points • 2025-01-20 22:49 UTC

Probably not.

u/J_does-Art • 1 points • 2025-01-20 22:50 UTC

a few people kindly educated me on the matter and explained that it was true that AI in short is bad for the environment

u/MechaGodzilla876 • 1 points • 2025-01-20 22:51 UTC

Oh okay... I don't know what that means in the long run, but... yeah.

u/J_does-Art • 1 points • 2025-01-20 22:52 UTC

it means after long term use even from one user online AI generator like C.AI will add to the effects of global warming

u/AtDreadfort • 4 points • 2025-01-09 23:17 UTC

Yes, generative AI is incredibly harmful to the environment. It also can only work by stealing the work of others. Some More News has recently done a video about it. there are some other good videos by Angela Collier. People aren't inherently bad for using a bad product, like meat, but there's also the personal cost of reading soulless garbage rather than actual works by humans that have intention and meaning and art.

u/BardicAdrian • 1 points • 2025-05-27 04:37 UTC

"stealing the work of others" is not really true for c.ai when it relies on the writing of bot creators who willingly make these things.

u/J_does-Art • 2 points • 2025-01-09 23:23 UTC

i personally use AI for two things 1) learning languages 2) talking to a bot i made of my dead friend

but nether of them are essential activities, i know the moral dilemma of Ai with its theft of intellectual property but i was more asking about the practical dilemma that is Ai corsing harm to the earth its self, does generative Ai apply to C.ai? if so i'll stop using it. unless you have no evidence that the C.ai servers are corsing harm...then ill do more research

u/AtDreadfort • 2 points • 2025-01-09 23:45 UTC

Character ai is owned by Google, Google's data centres for AI are harming the environment. And they are going to be opening a second one in Uruguay, which is already going through environmental and water shortage disasters, and it's aircon system is going to release 25000 tonnes of carbon dioxide a year, and 86 tonnes of hazardous waste. But again eating a burger is bad for the environment and an individual shouldn't be held accountable for large scale things. But as a group we should be against AI as it has only brought harm; to the environment, to fellow workers, to artists, even to democracy. So maybe instead look into what generative ai is, there's no way you can actually learn a language from it.

AI itself is in no way intelligent, it is regurgitated slop without any thought. If you are using it, and again that's fine, there should be no emotional connection or dependency on it as it is empty and devoid of life. Art has always been helpful to connect with yourself and those around you, AI cannot provide that.

u/hallulawy • 7 points • 2025-01-09 23:11 UTC

Do we really should worry about 16ml of water getting our dopamine while billionaires flying private jets and emitting tons of CO2? Gurl, breathe out and live a little u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-03-01 10:41 UTC

[removed]

u/J_does-Art • 2 points • 2025-01-09 23:58 UTC

i'm not for anyone flying private and there being no ethical way to be a billionaire that makes their existence worse, i'm just very conscious about my impact on the earth because though i won't live long the next generations will grow up in a world rotting from choices i and others made for a none essential want im simply looking for more ethical ways to talk to dead people:)
but i understand you comment and i thank you for the time you spent to respond