I built a site that shows the carbon footprint of your ChatGPT usage

Posted by u/RANGANDALE • 0 points • 20 comments

I recently built a web app that estimates the carbon footprint of your ChatGPT conversations.

It uses the `conversation.json` file to estimate the carbon footprint.

You just have to export the data from profile icon \-> Settings \-> Data Controls \-> Export Data \-> conversation.json and upload it.

Try it out Here!

I'm not uploading my conversations to a random site, sorry. It would be far better if you told us what numbers it needs and let us type them in. Happy to give you a file size or have the gpt itself count the lines or whatever, but encouraging people to upload the whole thing just makes it easier for people to phish, whether you specifically are phishing or not.

What's the math?

Everything happens in the client side.

There is no data sent to any server.

The entire code is in github just a html, css and js file.

How much carbon did OP waste making this project and post.

exactly. Just looks like blatant phishing

Lets get those numbers up!!!

u/VeiledShift • 3 points • 2025-05-25 14:04 UTC

Do people actually care about this?

u/Top-Tomatillo210 • 2 points • 2025-05-25 13:56 UTC

What about water usage? My wife goes on and on about chatgpts water consumption around the Great Lakes.

u/Trek7553 • 4 points • 2025-05-25 14:43 UTC

Honest question, what does water usage actually mean? The water isn't destroyed, doesn't it go back to the environment?

u/Top-Tomatillo210 • 3 points • 2025-05-25 14:48 UTC

That's exactly what i told her. She said "It's not the same" whatever that means??

u/RANGANDALE • 1 points • 2025-05-25 14:36 UTC

Just added it right now!

What else does it comb? Only media and influencers would want to actually use this tool. AI will save humanity if we don't put too many restrictions and tools like this only point blame at the users when the users are needed to make it better and better.

u/punchcreations • 1 points • 2025-05-25 14:45 UTC

How exactly will ai save humanity?

u/peppernickel • 1 points • 2025-05-25 18:06 UTC

From our own bureaucracy and over regulation.
