

r/aiwars

Where do anti-ai users think the water that datacenters supposedly "use up" goes?

Posted by u/Fersakening • 0 points • 61 comments

Does it just break the law of conservation of mass and disappear into nothingness?

Comments

u/AudienceHot7962 • 1 points • 2026-02-26 06:18 UTC

It doesn't go away the millions of gallons of water gets poisoned with forever chemicals and is undrinkable when we're on a global freshwater shortage. It takes water from the land to cool the centers instead of feeding the people, land, and animals. Just do some research

u/smooshingpumpkins • 1 points • 2025-10-22 07:11 UTC

its one more thing we dont need to use our precious water on, i can tell you that much. its less about the reality and more about the principal - if we are willing to waste our drinking water by the 200 million gallons for a shitty chatbot, and domesticate ourselves to it completely, the higher ups will take note that they can exploit our water sources to no endm anyone here using strawmen like golf to justify these megaliths is begging for worldwide inescapable drought.

u/Animal-Frequent • 1 points • 2025-06-10 15:55 UTC

Well it warms up a lot and gets released, making the natural waters it gets used from warm up quite a lot if this happened a lot

u/No-Paramedic9972 • 1 points • 2025-06-03 07:11 UTC

I didnt know evaporation brakes the law of conservation of mass