

What do antis mean when they say AI wastes water?

Posted by u/EtherealImperial • 0 points • 46 comments

Water is literally unable to be wasted. If it's poured on the ground, the Sun will evaporate it and turn it into rain. Water is like matter, it cannot be created or destroyed.

Comments

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-07-17 09:50 UTC

[removed]

u/FuManBoobs • 2 points • 2025-07-12 08:00 UTC

I waste water...shit. Am I AI???

u/pewisamood • 2 points • 2025-07-12 03:39 UTC

More water is used in the making of Blue jeans and a fast food burger then in a single ai prompt.

u/KinneKitsune • 1 points • 2025-07-12 00:05 UTC

!gif

u/Wise_Use1012 • 1 points • 2025-07-11 23:37 UTC

It means they make shit up to suit their agenda

u/Kenobi_the_Bold • 2 points • 2025-07-11 22:58 UTC

Good luck on your 8th grade chemistry test!

u/Monochrome21 • 2 points • 2025-07-11 22:47 UTC

It's kind of selective bias. A significant amount of computer power is going into AI at the moment so it's using a lot of water for cooling.

Even if we assume that water is just consumed in this process, the problem is that this water would have been used for whatever else is needed for compute.

So if there was no AI it would be used for video games/cgi rendering/idk photoshop/etc

By the same argument pixar should also be under fire too

u/EthanJHurst • 2 points • 2025-07-11 22:37 UTC

They mean they willfully take in misinformation.

u/Jougouleh • 1 points • 2025-07-11 22:14 UTC

Thirsty computer 🥵