

The environmental cost of AI

Posted by u/SecretShallot6470 • 0 points • 4 comments

Wondering what people think about how to manage the environmental costs of AI. I wrote a Substack on that today. I'd love to hear your thoughts.

As someone who did research on the topic, this is quite complete and well thought out. Especially Jevons paradox is difficult to overcome, but I agree transparency is key.

The only thing I don't like is that the piece itself largely feels AI generated. This makes it more difficult to trust the parts I have no expertise on.

Absolutely catastrophic.

Honestly, I think transparency is key. Companies should be upfront about energy use and carbon impact, and people should push for AI models to run on greener energy. Tech isn't going anywhere, but it can at least be more responsible
