

What kind of energy do you see associated with sides of the AI issue?

Posted by u/___mongoose___ • 0 points • 17 comments

Having delved into this before, I don't find ANTI or PRO really resonate with me personally. I just like finding an excuse to make AI images.

But having been exposed to the debate this long, which what kind of energy do you find associated with each side?

You don't have to constraint to NEGATIVE or POSITIVE. It can also be creative or uncreative. Humorous, or serious.

As someone somewhere to be found in the middle...

The worst I saw of antis gave "Only REAL artists know what struggle and suffering means. Just last friday Mrs. Jensen from math told me to focus on class instead of drawing my Fanfic OC Lucy Darkblood (she is the daughter of Lucifer btw)"-Vibes, while forcing false dichotomy and throwing baseless accusations and assumptions around before pressing you on how you could possibly excuse yourself committing those horrible crimes they have baselessly accused you of, because you were not fully agreeing that AI is a plague send by Moses for not letting his people go. Meanwhile each AI User for them is somehow both the final boss of latestage-capitalism with three healthbars and also the lazy fat slob straight up jorkin it to an anime-rendition of Garfield in fishnets, when he's not busying himself with staring at a wall and holding his breath just to feel something because they can't even afford drugs.

The worst I saw of pros gave "Youre argument is stupid. Am very smort." before hitting you with the most dumb shit-take you've ever seen someone concoct, making you wonder if this is a genius completely committing to the performance of lobotomizing himself live while typing their comment, or if you're experiencing actual double-think. You got some of the worst pros cosplaying as techno-utopian startup bros trying to sell Rokos Basilisk on someone looking for free smut in form of anime-renditions of Garfield in fishnets because he has to straight up jork it since he has a live lobotomy performance at 5'. Granted, you also have that one Person with perfectly set-up LoRa to fulfill all your needs regarding Furry Art that will surpass even Metal Gear (Real Furry Artists who were not yet caught by Mrs. Jensen during math class).

Then we got the worst of them all; The "centrists", Nazi-collaborateurs in disguise, the secret allies of \ [the Others\], whose whole vocabulary consists of "nuance" and five analogies about the power of friendship. These poor apes (haha das me) are stuck in a perpetual state of Limbo, forced to watch in eternal torment as both sides keep re-re-reposting screencaps in a daily ritual of foaming at the mouth and flinging poop at each other while screeching like monkeys in demonic possession. While we busy ourselves with thinking "holy hell, that's a lot of projection for a JPEG", we await the promised day of meeting someone willing to actually discuss in good faith in order to gain some insight, share opinions and experiences in non-hostility, and offer actually thought-through arguments that are not the 942' reinterpretation of a long-forgotten hitpiece called "I love Parrots". Also you should see that ugly-ass dumb piece of shite who lives in my mirror, you would hate him the most too.

There isn't really a "Pro" side. It's like abortion or declawing cats or circumcision -- you have one side that just wants the opportunity to do it if they want to do it and another side that believes no one should be doing it ever and wanting to stop it from happening. But few people are saying that everyone needs to get an abortion/declaw/circumcise/use AI in the same way that people are saying it's an evil act.

When one side views it as a moral imperative and the other side is primarily just "Lemme alone so I can do whatever", there's no comparison in "energy".

So the ones who want to be artists, but have no actual skill, suddenly have an online service to generate images... and yet they're NOT the ones finding a new purpose where one hadn't existed... but the artists who literally made their entire career out of being talented ARE the ones who now have a purpose, and that purpose is caring what untalented people do with an online service owned by a multi-billion dollar corporation?

Makes sense.

Here is a random shot of some of my own 3d work, one of hundreds.

I'm Pro AI and I don't feel any more purposeful on either side, or any less for that matter.

I think it's spawned some of the dumbest memes in existence, like anything involving the different sides making themselves the Chad just for starters.

It's ultimately pointless as no amount of whining is getting AI taken away. It's going to continue to progress and get better. There's no stopping it at this point.

It also currently produces a lot of slop. You gave a great example in your OP.

A lot of human art is also slop and looks like sht.

The kind of energy I get from the war itself is major loser energy. It's ultimately irrelevant.

>It's ultimately pointless as no amount of whining is getting AI taken away. It's going to continue to progress and get better. There's no stopping it at this point.

Are we going to act like regulations and possible concerns are not a thing?

It's very dismissive to assume just because something exists and most likely will continue to exist means it's a good thing.

u/DukeRains • 1 points • 2025-07-29 20:15 UTC

Idk who the we is but you can talk to me directly.

Possible concerns are absolutely a thing. Nothing about my comment is saying there isn't. Unfortunately Anti-AI people aren't just raising possible concerns lol.

And regulation is also a thing, but if I'm reading the writing on the wall, I don't know how they meaningfully regulate specifically art with regard to AI. Seems like toothpaste is already outta the tube on that.

u/Strife_347 • 1 points • 2025-07-29 20:24 UTC

AI is not some sort of "force of nature". There are many things that can be done about it, like simply making it against ToS of websites to post AI works without appropriate tags and preventing people from posting too many of them.

u/DukeRains • 1 points • 2025-07-30 09:56 UTC

But nobody is arguing it should be tagged. They're arguing it shouldn't exist.

I couldn't care less whether it's tagged or not but if it would shut those people up, make it a law for all I care.

u/AppleFritter100 • 3 points • 2025-07-29 19:10 UTC

The "war" is just massive circle jerks lmao.

u/AlwaysLit2 • 3 points • 2025-07-29 18:08 UTC

"MWAHAHAHAHAHA i used ai to depict you as ugly and depressed, i am morally superior!"

u/__mongoose__ • 3 points • 2025-07-29 18:12 UTC

How is this a productive reply?

Its anti-anything. I could literally post it into any subreddit. Like in Anti-cake, anti-puppies, or anti-oil-rigs.

How it the attitude that anti-ai people have lives devoid of meaning productive?

u/___mongoose___ • 1 points • 2025-07-29 18:21 UTC

It should be

YAH_BUT how it the attitude that anti-ai people have lives devoid of meaning productive?

I find that most kinds of activism have a dark and depressing side to them.
