

thoughts on this? i care about artists and the environment but actual art is genuinely disgusting in my opinion and think AI images look better

Posted by u/Select_Scientist5803 • 0 points • 16 comments

artists win, earth wins, and i win

Comments

u/DentistPitiful5454 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:32 UTC

The first two don't happen because

1. You guys always shit on artists wanting money for commissions, calling them entitled brats who look down on everyone else
2. I know for a fact you all don't leave your fucking house.

u/Select_Scientist5803 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:50 UTC

no no, I don't think of artists as entitled. some artists can be annoying sometimes, but i understand having a job and working for money. hell if i could have my full time job being collecting diecast cars then I would do anything to achieve that goal. that's why I still would donate money to an artist who is in a rough place at the time (usually when they have a sale on commissions because they're late on bills or something). and i do leave my house. to be fair its usually to walk to work or to get groceries, but when i have the chance i walk around my town and just take a moment for myself.

u/DentistPitiful5454 • 1 points • 2025-08-16 00:26 UTC

Most people who use Gen AI (and this is coming from defendingAI) openly believe that artists charging money for their work is morally wrong, and feeding their art into a trained model is better because it could lead to less people wanting to commission them and push them further away and destroy their platform.

I dont trust people who use gen AI, because they see anyone not on their side as someone to be "replaced". While they cry that they're victims of facism, they believe in "replacement by automation".

u/WideAbbreviations6 • 2 points • 2025-08-15 23:30 UTC

why "donate commission money to an artist"?

They're business owners, not charities...

u/Select_Scientist5803 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:51 UTC

I donate to smaller artists, basically a charity because a lot of them are trying to pay bills. you can see that when they have commission sales

u/WideAbbreviations6 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:56 UTC

No... charity means something specific.

Donating money to keep a private business open isn't charity. I could see an argument for it being called a subsidy, but it absolutely isn't charity.

u/Blaike325 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:28 UTC

Bait used to be believable

u/No-Back-4159 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:24 UTC

your the first person ive seen who likes how ai art looks

u/TinySuspect9038 • 4 points • 2025-08-15 23:19 UTC

!gif0TJrlyCotQvie6vL4E)

u/poudje • 1 points • 2025-08-17 02:46 UTC

Idk, but I am p sure this is a meme meant to discourage discussion. This seems familiar to me, but I can't put my finger on it...

u/Pigeon_of_Doom_ • 0 points • 2025-08-15 23:19 UTC

AI isn't bad for the environment. That's nonsense. If you want to help artists, that's fine, but there's nothing wrong with you using AI to make images anyway.

u/poudje • 3 points • 2025-08-15 23:18 UTC

What is your definition of disgusting?

u/Select_Scientist5803 • -1 points • 2025-08-15 23:19 UTC

repulsive to look at

u/poudje • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:22 UTC

Okay, and what do you mean by art? Are we saying like van Gogh, Picasso? Or is this limited to just smaller artists?

Also, would like to add any more qualifiers to repulsive? (e.g. the colors, the line density, the shading, etc.).

I apologize for the questions, but I would like to gauge what you're arguing before I respond.

u/Select_Scientist5803 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:40 UTC

there is art that i like, i like real music more, but I'm talking about art as in images and photography. I guess "repulsive" is pretty strong of a term but i don't like it. I do applaud anyone who puts time and effort into a hobby they enjoy, but i just don't get that same feeling of that I do from something that wasn't generated by a human, but is a rendition of all of human creation from the beginning of the internet that was made by a machine that doesn't truly exist in a way. its like watching a river, you just sit there looking at something soothing and constant. which is how i feel about AI generated art. when i generate an image i do have a rough idea of what I'm creating, but it's not like how you pick up a stylus and know exactly what you want to make. like in this image that i looked up, nobody had any idea that this is how the image would turn out. it just appeared from algorithms and code, and to me that is more beautiful than anything anyone can make

https://preview.redd.it/cl0misdqr9jf1.png?

width=710&format=png&auto=webp&s=ec6f72d000a82924df972d96c46841299b17c66b

u/poudje • 2 points • 2025-08-16 00:01 UTC

I feel that about the intentionality of art, and actually think the profundity you describe is ultimately what I find fascinating about AI generation in general. I used to be super into zen poetry and the I Ching, so I totally feel you on those vibes. Artists participate in it in cooler ways than it initially seems. Consequently, I think that art is really good at being a river in several ways too. Dali is the undisputed GOAT in this regard, as well as the surrealist tradition in general, but there are other great examples about unintentionality and perspective.

https://preview.redd.it/qbcyla5fv9jf1.jpeg?

width=1024&format=pjpg&auto=webp&s=b6408b99586ae47221543cce4da84bb266332129

Take for example this piece, La Meninas by Vasquez. This is an important piece in art history from the 17th century, mostly because of how revolutionary it was in blurring the boundary between viewer and subject. At first glance, it seems like a court portrait of a young princess surrounded by her attendants. However, the deeper you look, the more you see layers as the painting becomes a puzzle about perspective and power. Velázquez inserts himself into the composition, the dude with a brush in hand, as though painting the very canvas we are now observing. However, we are witnessing the canvas we are observing at the same time.

A mirror in the background reflects an older man and woman, who are most likely analogues of the actual king and queen at the time, Philip IV and Queen Mariana. Their placement suggests, however, that they may be standing where the viewer stands, so are we the king or queen? Is this our daughter's ball?

Ultimately, the arrangement itself creates a dynamic play of reality and illusion that questions the act of looking itself. Art also has a long history of using light to guide our eyes, such as how subtle use of light enhances the princess, who must be Marina, while leaving other figures in shadow, purposefully obscured. Compositional focus and visual hierarchy are long-standing traditions in the art world. I ain't gonna tell you what to like, but learning about these was the first way I began to see art differently. It also makes it a lot more interesting. The history of any piece of creation only adds to that curiosity. Inevitably, New rivers flow into what is essentially a giant tributary.

u/SectorConscious4179 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:17 UTC

You say all that, but when will you do all that?

u/Select_Scientist5803 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:19 UTC

i already do it.

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-08-16 02:32 UTC

[removed]

u/SectorConscious4179 • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:20 UTC

Ok cool :D

u/AutoModerator • 1 points • 2025-08-15 23:13 UTC

This is an automated reminder from the Mod team. If your post contains images which reveal the personal information of private figures, be sure to censor that information and repost. Private info includes names, recognizable profile pictures, social media usernames and URLs. Failure to do this will result in your post being removed by the Mod team and possible further action.

I am a bot, and this action was performed automatically. Please contact the moderators of this subreddit if you have any questions or concerns.