

i cant stop using chatgpt even though i know about the environmental impacts

Posted by u/thr0w_away53791 • • 0 points • 7 comments

hi! i (17F) need to get this off my chest, ive been using chatgpt since the start of march.

i genuinely cant stop, i feel like im going insane, it makes me sick with the environmental impacts and the amount of guilt that i feel is insane.

ive lost all of my critical thinking skills, my writing skills, my intelligence, i just simply dont have those skills anymore, and i cant keep doing this to myself i had this feeling of guilt start about 3 weeks ago when i realised that there were environmental impacts and ive been thinking about stopping since, but after seeing that ai actress i cant do this i cant contribute to ai stealing human nature and becoming the 'art' that we see.

i feel like im an awful person constantly

im scared

thank you for listening to me

Comments

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-10-04 19:50 UTC

[removed]

u/Adventurous-Belt-734 • 1 points • 2025-10-04 19:37 UTC

I get you. I don't use it that much and I have the same feeling, kinda scared of falling for the "easy option". I am treating it, and I think you should treat it, as if it were an addiction. You gotta change your mindset and cut it off for good. No baby steps. Cut it off.

Any time you got the impulse to use it, stop, and think about the other tools you can use. It has only been a thing since like 2022?) You had been able to do everything without it, you can do it again.

It's completely normal to get used to something that makes everything easier for us. That's what technology is about. But just like everything, we have to moderate its use.

u/thr0w_away53791 • 1 points • 2025-10-04 19:40 UTC yeah i know, my main concern is failing my senior year, im 17 and if i fail this year i wont get into university (mind u i dont have it write my papers for me but the research? absolutely)

u/Adventurous-Belt-734 • 1 points • 2025-10-04 19:56 UTC

I understand. I'm a graduate myself in chemistry, ChatGPT was popularised like when I was doing my senior year and I of course didn't use it for research because it was kinda new, I only used it to rewrite stuff. But nowadays, I sometimes used it to ask chem stuff and I've noticed strong flaws; I insist, do not blindly use whatever it tells u, contrast everything and double check everything. It's a good side-tool, but just that, a side tool.

u/thr0w_away53791 • 2 points • 2025-10-04 20:46 UTC

okay, thank you for that, im actually currently studying for the first time all year without it at all so, wish me luck i guess 😂

u/FirefighterDismal119 • 1 points • 2025-10-04 18:21 UTC

Delete the app

u/thr0w_away53791 • 0 points • 2025-10-04 19:38 UTC

i have