

Not only does arguing about AI produce more carbon than AI itself, the carbon footprint from traditional artwork is massively more significant and damaging to the planet

Posted by u/altcoinbillionaire • • 0 points • 3 comments

I love when people try to argue that AI art itself or the servers are bad trying to protect traditional art, but traditional art has been damaging the planet for quite some time. Where is your defense? Whenever the very thing you're trying to protect is not only been responsible for many deaths, micro, pollutions, micro, plastics, chemical intoxication, runoff into streams and groundwater? What are you trying to protect? Are you protecting the planet or are you protecting your fragile ego?

Comments

u/FluffyWeird1513 • 1 points • 2025-10-06 17:48 UTC

are you trying to say that some back-and-forth posts on Reddit and other socials expend more resources than generative ai? that seems inaccurate.

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-10-06 16:40 UTC

[removed]

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-10-04 20:37 UTC

[removed]

u/altcoinbillionaire • 8 points • 2025-10-04 18:44 UTC

<https://preview.redd.it/cbthbhqi45tf1.jpeg?width=1170&format=pjpg&auto=webp&s=a1c5eb20c0b141b253d65151535b53ec6afbd937>

u/Early-Dentist3782 • 3 points • 2025-10-04 19:15 UTC

