Character AI and environment

Posted by u/cathimari • • 0 points • 0 comments hello! i know this has probably been asked and said a lot on here but i felt the need to ask about it myself.

we obviously all know ai is bad for the environment (or i should hope so) and i myself have become more aware of it recently. the thing is, i love character ai for making my own stories and coming up with scenarios that i find fun or interesting. but i know this is likely using a lot of energy and water (ive not been using it as much anymore because of this). does anyone know how bad the energy usage for cai is specifically? i know that the internet is no better and that also causes a LOT of environmental damage, but this is important to me.

thank you! this isn't hate or anything, i just genuinely want to know people's thoughts
