

r/singularity

The great carbon duty scam and true cost of artificial intelligence

Posted by u/willhelpmemore • • 0 points • 3 comments

Not a peep about this eh? It must be using so many volts to generate all these songs and pics yet no one speaks on it but boo, hiss at you not honoring your carbon footprint allocation. Said people who fly private jets. And some that look like elven munchkins reciting scripts.

Has there been any info published into how much this whole AI thing has spiked electricity usage, globally?

Comments

u/redditonc3again • 1 points • 2025-10-29 23:33 UTC

>Not a peep about this eh? ... Has there been any info published into how much this whole AI thing has spiked electricity usage, globally?

It's one of the biggest things being reported on in the media...

u/NotReallyJohnDoe • 1 points • 2025-10-29 23:18 UTC

Most of these processors are at 1.7v to minimize heat. Not many volts at all, so your premise isn't valid.

u/willhelpmemore • -4 points • 2025-10-29 23:30 UTC

If you truly look into this at depth you'll see how sketch the electric usage is considering they're on 24/7 and how much data they use to generate etc etc plus how widespread this is becoming.

u/willhelpmemore • -8 points • 2025-10-29 22:50 UTC

Think about the planet, you morans!