

Why aren't people more concerned about the environmental impact of AI?

Posted by u/jilliancaprice • • 0 points • 53 comments

Are folks just not informed? Do people really not care?

Comments

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2026-01-03 02:09 UTC

[removed]

u/GypsyGold • 1 points • 2025-12-15 01:52 UTC

Because this is just how electricity works.

Every time there is a new technological advancement this argument is used -- crypto mining, self-driving cars, GAAS, the sharing economy, always online gaming consoles, video streaming services, mobile tracking apps, location tracking services, GPS in cars, Ring Cameras & Smart Homes, smart phones, social media, the internet in general.

The thing coming up next are robots. It's always something.

u/Bandwagon056 • 1 points • 2025-11-21 23:27 UTC

I do love to be ignorant to protect my peace. I feel AI is something we cannot stop and the environment has been neglected proly since humans started chasing money over everything else. I do NOT litter and reduce, reuse, recycle but if I'm having a break down and can't see things clearly , a robot will certainly help me with that and I don't see the harm in it.

u/Sapphire_Dreams1024 • 2 points • 2025-11-21 12:44 UTC

A lot of people dont know about it. The ones who do know and dont care arent directly effected by those environmental issues. A lot of people lack empathy, so if it doesn't hurt them, they just dont give a shit.

The majority of my friends know and avoid AI as much as possible like I do

u/HeartInTheSun9 • 2 points • 2025-11-21 08:08 UTC

Most people don't know and they don't care. I think it's too big for a lot of people to even consider.

Plus, I still think most people don't really care about AI. At most, lots of people look at it like an app like Shazam or Google translate or even just Google where you press something and something happens and they don't get that you're basically powering on a super computer that's draining a few yards of rainforest each time to give a lame result.

u/JPSevall • 2 points • 2025-11-21 07:11 UTC

I think most people just don't realize how much energy AI actually uses. It's not that they don't care, it's just not on their radar until someone brings it up.

u/Popular-Region-8655 • 1 points • 2025-11-21 04:51 UTC

I could care less about what ai will do to the enviroment. People will lose jobs the governement could shlw us any video they want us to see to start wars. The enviroment is the last thing on my list of important shit.

u/jilliancaprice • 1 points • 2025-11-21 12:26 UTC

that's about the stance I expected people to have. Sucks people care more about convenience than the planet that inhabits us. It's so easy to just.. not use AI 🤔🤔🤔

u/Popular-Region-8655 • 1 points • 2025-11-21 19:25 UTC

Dude when ai is indisquingishable from reality i promise the enviroment wont be on your list of concerns. We will be in the dark ages with information we are fed. Also its not easy to not use ai because theres always gonna be someone using it. Its out of our control. The people in power will use it too rule over us manipulate us etc.

u/Voyager5555 • 2 points • 2025-11-21 04:29 UTC

I work for a non-profit and brought it up to my boss as a concern about using it. She didn't seem to care at all.