

all my irl friends was again ai just because of water.

Posted by u/Certain_Question7404 • 0 points • 12 comments

After making them understand that with Netflix and social media they consume in the same way, I managed to make them stop being against it (they weren't anti , the fear of AI only came from the water) I'm sure there is a lot of misinformation in the world rn, i mean rly big

Comments

u/EngineerBig1851 • 1 points • 2025-12-04 04:14 UTC

Things that never happened, edition #203.

People on this sub need to stop upvoting bait or obvious lies just because they feel comfy.

u/Certain_Question7404 • 4 points • 2025-12-04 04:19 UTC

I repeat, they were not anti-AI, they had a moral influence on AI for the news about water.

u/EngineerBig1851 • 1 points • 2025-12-04 08:03 UTC

I really really really really really really really doubt it. I Haven't seen a single case like this ever. I have, however, seen multiple people get shunned from their former "friend groups", and even sometimes following up with harassment and stalking.

So, nice story. But I'm not buying it.

u/Greenhawk444 • 5 points • 2025-12-03 23:51 UTC

When it comes to my friends and AI it's honestly confusing. They are against it (I know for sure 2 are but I suspect others are as well) and yet they won't hesitate to use it (ChatGPT is one I know they use) or jump on the next trend like the ghibli trend for example. One of them went as far as making a ghibli version of his discord pfp and then used it as his pfp.

u/Aggravating-Math3794 • 3 points • 2025-12-04 03:50 UTC

Many people who are vocally antis are actually curious about trying out new tech. They just repeat bs out of fear of being ostracized, crowd instincts be cursed...

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-12-04 02:33 UTC

[removed]

u/Australasian25 • 0 points • 2025-12-03 22:58 UTC

I really think there is no need to defend misconceptions like these.

As with misconceptions, they are either embraced by a minority of people or will eventually die out.

Either way, it will not dictate policy.

If individual thinks when AI generates a cat image for me, it empties out a lake, so be it. It doesn't change the fact. Even if that individual realises their error, it again changes nothing.

Sooner or later AI will be commonly used like search engines. Long gone are the days of memorising links or being unsearchable.

Again, it's just a matter of time, and I am going to sound cruel saying this. But it isn't my job to convince others that AI isn't as harmful to the environment as most think. They either come to realise it themselves or they'll keep believing it and not use it. All because there is a personal cost to the relationship when there's disagreements. Others can fight this battle.

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-12-04 02:36 UTC

[removed]

u/itsmemann15 • -1 points • 2025-12-03 22:31 UTC

Do they live in Memphis?

u/DefendingAIArt-ModTeam • 2 points • 2025-12-04 00:28 UTC

This sub is not for inciting debate. Please move your comment to aiwars for that.

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-12-03 22:28 UTC

[removed]

u/hutinfore • 18 points • 2025-12-03 21:56 UTC

You are so lucky to have friends who are actually willing to listen your arguments. If only all sceptics were like that...

However congrats to you for clarifying the things successfully until they became full blown antis.