

r/Ai_art_is_not_art

Clean water that can't be recycled used in one single AI prompt.

Posted by u/KatamariTheDobermn • 0 points • 274 comments

Now times that by millions, billions even.

Comments

u/Kuetz • 1 points • 2026-01-20 03:05 UTC

Next thing they'll say, "yall cut down trees" even though they're replaceable

u/KatamariTheDobermn • 1 points • 2026-01-20 03:10 UTC

They are if we replant them which barely any people do

u/[deleted] • 1 points • 2025-12-12 13:57 UTC

[removed]

u/Androm3da_1 • 1 points • 2025-12-07 06:30 UTC

There is a thousand reasons why genai should be banned art thrft is just one of them

u/Round-Employer2788 • 1 points • 2025-12-07 00:24 UTC

Do you eat meat?

u/KatamariTheDobermn • 1 points • 2025-12-12 13:59 UTC

Yeah my favorite meal had steak in it.. why is this relevant?

u/Round-Employer2788 • 1 points • 2025-12-12 14:07 UTC

ever thought to consider the water and land use invested into those few bites of entertainment?

u/KokosNutWater • 1 points • 2025-12-06 12:27 UTC

Just to clarify the water used in ai data centers is stored in the building and throughout the tubing for cooling the servers. The water doesn't just evaporate or something. It straight up does not leave the facility and the little that does evaporate won't rain down up in the area it was taken from. This is less of a worldwide issue and more devastating for the areas that these data centers are built (which are usually smaller towns that need/want the money) it does still affect the world though, as you would expect if you made minor to severe drought happen in multiple places across a continent.