

How do all of you brainless AI users feel about ai possibly using more water than the amount being drunk by humans from water bottles this year ?

How do you feel wasted more water possible to drink in you life to produce one burger ?

u/DearDarlingDollies • 0 points • 2025-12-21 00:39 UTC

Are you a vegetarian? Because eating meat is actually worse for the planet than AI.

For now!!! Skynet!!!!!!!!!!

Water in water out water water everywhere

u/A-lox • 1 points • 2025-12-21 00:45 UTC

So you're saying contaminated rain water and salt water and sewage water are usable to us?
Can we drink that water ? Salt, water, and contaminated water isn't even useful to data centers.
They need fresh water to operate. Not some runoff water.

Data centers use water for cooling dude. It's often recycled. They don't "consume" water. It usually gets pumped in and out of the same source unaffected

u/A-lox • 1 points • 2025-12-21 00:43 UTC

And what % is recycled water on average by data centers? Do you know how much water is evaporated in data centers ?

I like it. Drinking plenty of water makes me smarter and clearer-headed and I don't hallucinate as much.

"The 'AI uses more water than humans drink in bottles' thing isn't technically fake — a recent study estimated AI's total water footprint (including cooling and the water tied up in power production and chip manufacturing) could be in the same ballpark as global bottled-water consumption. But that's a rough estimate with huge assumptions, not a measured fact.

Basically, it's like saying your car 'uses as much water as a pool' because you include all the water used to make the tires, fuel, and electricity — not the water you poured into the radiator. Context matters."

Glad it doesn't come with an additional 500 billion plastic bottles

.... If it's for cooling data stacks ? What's the issue? Use runoff for agriculture. If you are talking about nuclear power... we already do that. Ourselves.

u/justthekoufax • 9 points • 2025-12-21 00:29 UTC

Agriculture accounts for nearly 70% of the world's freshwater withdrawals, far exceeding urban or industrial needs. Hope you don't eat!

sun accounts for nearly 90% of skin cancer. Far exceeds the amount of people getting skin cancer from tanning beds. Hope you don't need the sun !

Offended and sad and mad and not glad 😞

u/No_Novel8228 • -5 points • 2025-12-21 00:26 UTC

kind of mean tbh

u/No_Novel8228 • -8 points • 2025-12-21 00:27 UTC

yeah well fuck you man ai sucks

u/SystemofCells • 12 points • 2025-12-21 00:33 UTC

Gotta remember to change accounts.

u/hitemplo • 1 points • 2025-12-21 00:26 UTC

How do you feel about not understanding how the water cycle works?
