

AI bro said that I have brain damage just because I told them that water is being wasted.

"Chemically unfit for repurposing further" is wrong.

It's not even so far tainted as to make it especially taxing to treat than water usually is.

The problem is how much is being used (and flushed), not just overall but especially in single areas. There are places where people have had to leave, creating ghost towns because supply can't keep up with demand (in conjunction with noise pollution and skyrocketing electricity bills and occasional power outages).

And worse, again due to be so localized, the streams in the area being unfit for life. Killing local fauna and flora.

When you're wrong, and they're wrong. It feels asthough any level of hishonesty and ridicule is justified. Becaus what other option to they have?

But yeah. This guy for sure runs all his taps at full bore all day because he doesn't understand the concept of water wastage.

Ai bros saying psychosis is so hilarious ironic. And even if you were wrong that's still not psychosis, do they think it's just some meaningless buzzword lmao

Those people are so privileged.

I do not know how long the same water stays in their cooling systems, but water at warm temps gets tons of shit like Legionella.

I had one them threaten to fly in my city and fight me because I said Ray Kurzweil's predictions / prophecies were bullshit.

The pro-AI platform attracts tons of mentally unsound people.

He has to justify paying some massive corporation to spy on all his prompts and questions. Anyone who brings up any negatives of AI is seen as a threat, they are like ai junkies

So that he can diddle himself imagining that someone actually loves him

Ironic that third party thinkers would claim someone who disagrees with them must have brain damage.

I am no expert on cooling, but I can think of several reasons unclean water could potentially damage the cooling system as a whole. Like calcification or something similar with salt.

The short and simple version is that water needs to be treated with chemicals to kill bacteria that thrives in warm water. Then further to prevent that it from eating through pipes.
