

r/teenagers

"Ai is harmful for the environment" is probably the most bullshit biased take ever(click bait title btw)

Posted by u/We_Are_Charlie_Kirk_ • 0 points • 0 comments

Sure it's bad for artists and other stuff such as deepfakes and the argument that it's harmful for the environment cuz its depleting natural resources like water is true but not compared to things we consider normal which actually consume way more energy than ai. Let me explain :

AI runs on the same data center infrastructure used for:
Streaming

Social media

Cloud storage

Gaming

If people are concerned about environmental impact, video streaming and crypto mining consume far more energy than typical AI use.

Growing one cup of coffee uses around 140 liters of water, while an AI query uses only a few milliliters. You'd need thousands of AI questions to equal the water used for one coffee lol.

AI data centers do use a lot of water overall because billions of queries happen daily, but per use, AI's water footprint is extremely small compared to many everyday products.

So basically, a single coffee drink has orders of magnitude more water footprint than one AI interaction, and the question to be answered to is, do we need both coffee and ai to sustain ourselves? No, its not necessary, but do we complain about coffee taking too much water and causing environmental distress? Lemme know.

Comments