

All this talk about environmental impacts of AI and you're still no fun at parties for bringing up animal agriculture

Posted by u/leugaroul • 0 points • 179 comments

Oh and one burger costs the same as 617,000 text-based AI queries, according to the new reports from Google.

The numbers are shocking and horrific.

I had hope all this excellent talk about how our choices affect our planet would lead people to realize, hey, you DON'T need that burger, just like you DON'T need to get AI to do art for you, but no.

\-

Edit: Nitpicking about whether Google is lying or not - strange that there are so many comments saying animal agriculture is not that bad in a vegan sub. And some astroturfing and troll comments. Anyway...

The Google reports on current AI energy and water usage did not directly compare AI to beef production in a "see it isn't bad" way. You can compare energy and water usage of various AI models and use cases yourself. It's public information and these reports were not created to make AI look good.

I will post the studies when I get home but the reports are common and accessible knowledge. Example - [\[https://bryantresearch.co.uk/insight-items/comparing-water-footprint-ai/\]\(https://bryantresearch.co.uk/insight-items/comparing-water-footprint-ai/\)](https://bryantresearch.co.uk/insight-items/comparing-water-footprint-ai/)

And no. Pointing this out does not make you pro-AI.

This is an excellent learning opportunity for non-vegans who are anti-AI to find out they could go vegan for one week and make up for their AI footprint for at least ten years. Yes, it really is that bad!

Imagine if we got all these people who are in the anti-AI movement because they genuinely care about the environment to go vegan.

Comments

u/yungdraco_ • 2 points • 2026-03-29 18:39 UTC

I'm very much against AI but I hope yall also know just using the internet in general for literally anything also uses significant amounts of water

u/emilithia05 • 1 points • 2026-03-28 09:14 UTC

Whatever helps ya cope, kids

u/leugaroul • 1 points • 2026-03-28 09:15 UTC

What does this even mean? What a weird comment. If you have evidence that shows otherwise, feel free to share.

u/emilithia05 • 1 points • 2026-03-28 09:19 UTC

It's absolute BS claim made by clangers. "1 burger" is completely grown cow, wheat, salad, tomatoes, which don't take one minute to grow, but years upon years. If "1 burger = 50k pics, so hypocritical" then why don't we stop showering, drinking, eating altogether?

u/leugaroul • 1 points • 2026-03-28 09:21 UTC

I'm not a "clanker," I was clear multiple times I am anti-AI. It's also abundantly clear you didn't even bother to look into this.

Please feel free to share your own statistics. I am obviously talking about beef, not tomatoes and salad lol.

Showering, drinking, and eating are necessary to live.

You do NOT need beef, or other animal products, just like you do NOT need to use AI.

u/emilithia05 • 1 points • 2026-03-28 09:26 UTC

I didn't say you were, I said the claim about burger equals bajillion ai pics is made, reading the room is taught in 3rd grade ffs.

And oh, if I don't need beef, then I don't need anything that "replaces it" but would you look at that, veganism makes people sick because they lack everything which meat can provide in a small bite, and if you replace it with plant based products you're basically supposed to live in the kitchen eating all day and night not to lose weight and not pass out from vitamins deficiency.

And if we do not need meat, why won't you make carnivorous animals vegan then? They don't need it too, what makes us "better"? Nothing.

u/leugaroul • 1 points • 2026-03-28 09:28 UTC

Typical, you don't have a solid answer so you resort to flinging insults and lying.

Veganism doesn't make people sick. Even if you want to believe that, at least give up red meat. With current metrics, giving up red meat for ONE MONTH currently offsets your individual AI footprint for life. 🙌

u/emilithia05 • 1 points • 2026-03-28 10:03 UTC

Where in the world did I insult you?
Nowhere. Imagining insults is not a win you think it is.

>Veganism doesn't make people sick.

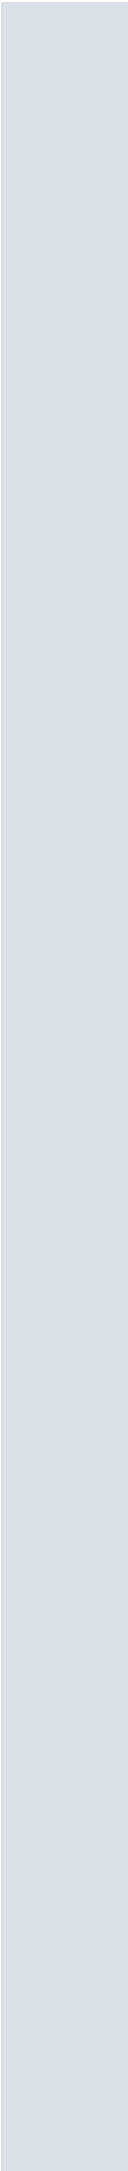

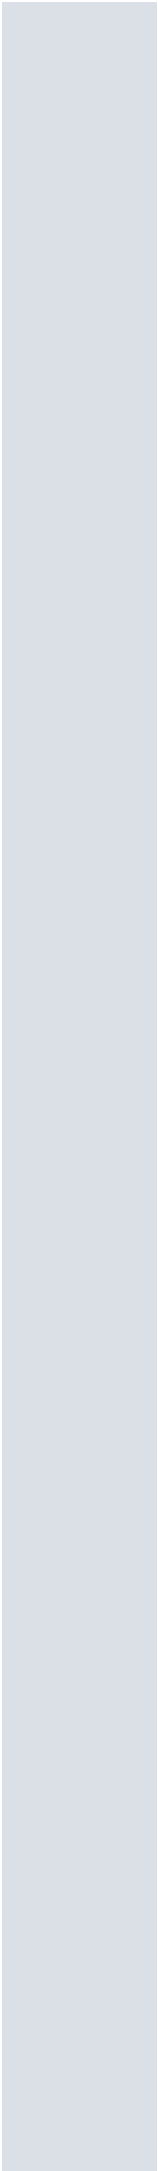

Please then, explain this to people who left veganism because of vitamin deficiency and who were sent in the emergency room because of this. I'll wait. Right, it's the other side of the coin close to none of you people want to acknowledge, brushing it off as "unrelated sickness"

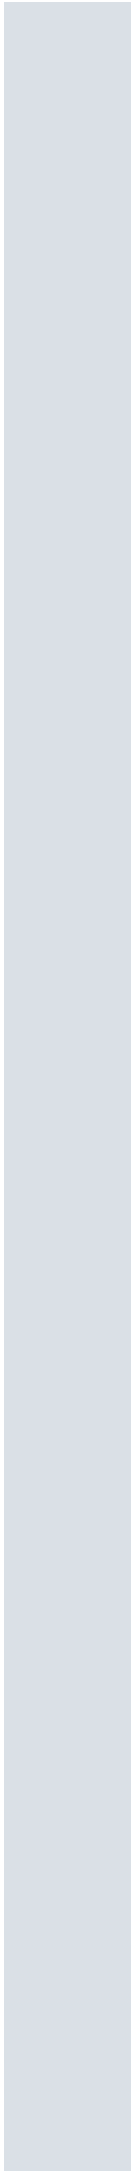

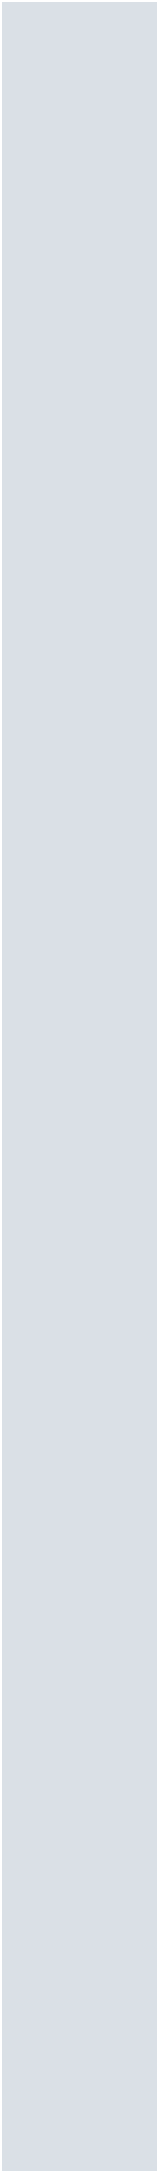

u/leugaroul • 1 points • 2026-03-28 14:09 UTC

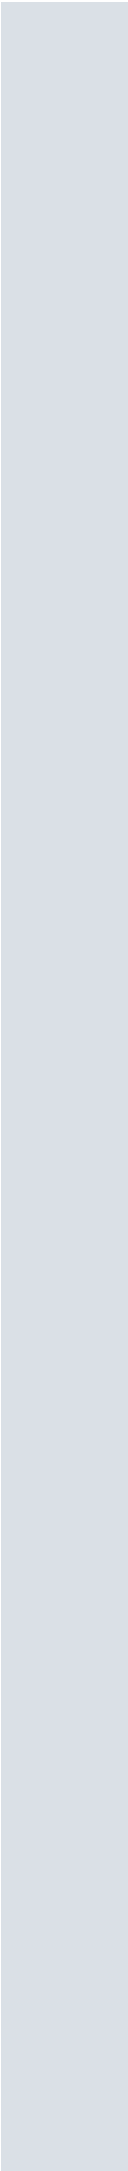

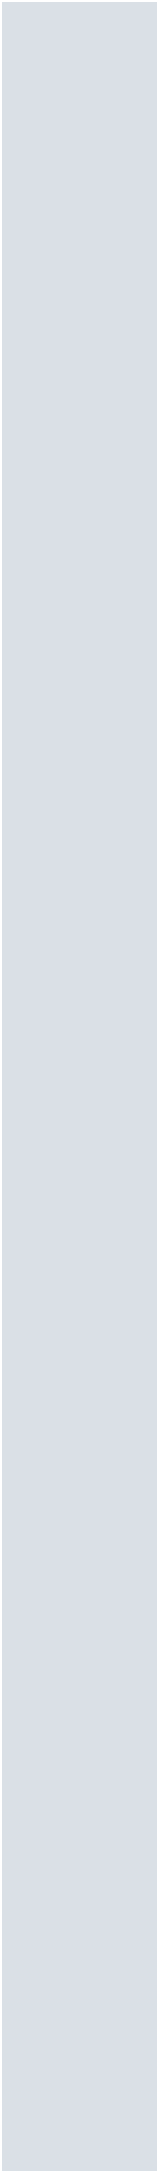

Sure you did. You're doing it right now. Poor nutrition and not managing your body makes you sick. People who are not vegan land in the hospital all the time with nutrition issues, especially following a major diet change such as after WLS or keto.

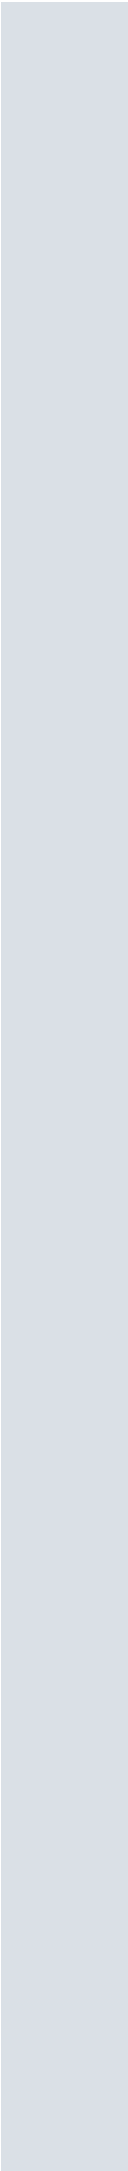

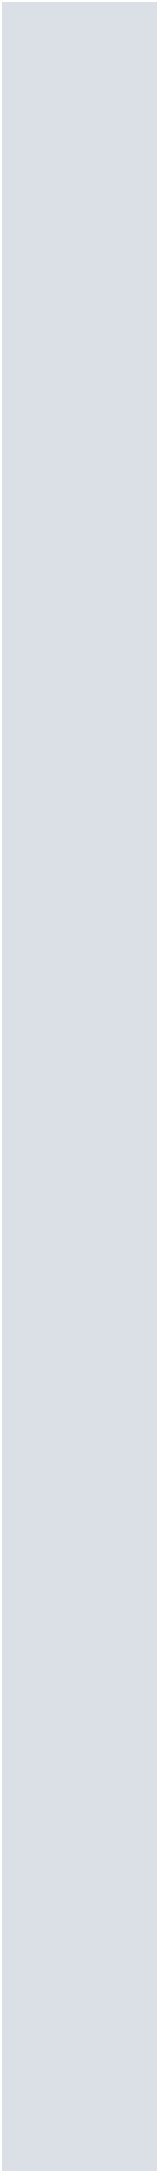

Like I said, even if you want to believe that about veganism, there is still zero excuse for consuming beef. Over 1.5 billion people abstain completely from beef.

You don't need beef,
you WANT it.

u/AutoModerator • 1 points • 2026-03-28 08:43 UTC

Thanks for posting to r/Vegan! 🐥

Civil discussion is welcome — personal attacks are not. Please read our wiki first.

New to veganism? 🌱

- Watch Dominion — a powerful, free documentary that changes lives.
- NutritionFacts.org — evidence-based health info
- HappyCow.net — find vegan-friendly restaurants near you

Want to help animals? 💻

- Browse volunteer opportunities on Flockwork and use your skills to make a difference
- Join the Flockwork Discord to be notified of new opportunities that match your skills

Thank you!

I am a bot, and this action was performed automatically. Please contact the moderators of this subreddit if you have any questions or concerns.