Do cows consume resources from a zero-point energy state, according to anti-AI regards?

Removed due to phallic object. Add NSFW tag + spoiler tag and we'll re-approve.

This meme is inaccurate as it portrays the typical anti AI propagandist as more intelligent than is usually the case.

Both can be problematic and things we should work on improving.

honestly my main concern is energy

u/Right-Nectarine8729 • 0 points • 2026-03-23 20:47 UTC

Makes most major computer parts expensive, eliminates countless jobs with no reasonable measures in place to solve it, destroys critical thinking and development, used for untalented morons to create slop. AND wastes water and resources that could go towards better things.

u/MilitarisedAutism • 2 points • 2026-03-23 20:37 UTC

Every data center uses about the same amount lol

The humble closed water cooling loop.

u/Black_Tusk25 • 0 points • 2026-03-23 20:23 UTC

Dont belittle people because they aren't of our same ideas please, we should be better than this

u/MrYoggus777 • 1 points • 2026-03-23 20:28 UTC

It won't work. I got downvoted for saying that cows were a bad analogy like why can't we just say factories or the millions of houses with electricity and water

u/MrYoggus777 • -3 points • 2026-03-23 19:44 UTC

Terrible analogy

u/-SMG69- • 5 points • 2026-03-23 20:39 UTC

Don't know why you're getting downvoted. This is a really, really bad comparison.
