

Ai isn't nearly as bad as animal agriculture when it comes to environmental impact

Posted by u/Wise_Juggernaut_3079 • 0 points • 42 comments

That is all. If you care about the environment you'd switch to a plant based diet

Comments

u/jsrobson10 • 1 points • 2026-03-24 22:58 UTC

animal products actually feed people, while AI doesn't. and while our use of animal products is definitely too high, it is still food.

u/mcjenn3 • 3 points • 2026-03-24 22:52 UTC

There's a proven link between healthier, more ethical eating and higher socioeconomic standing. Most people living paycheck to paycheck are not going to convert to a pricier diet that takes more management and attention to reach nutrient needs, particularly if it's not just their own meals they need to consider.

Regardless, I can make more ethical choices and buy local, ethically raised meat. AI does not afford the same autonomy to opt for alternative "ethical AI" over unethical AI. It's also easier to opt out of, it won't cost me anything to not use.

If you care about the environment, engage in activism for AI regulation in addition to more sustainable, ethical animal farming in your country.

u/ScoobyWithADobie • 0 points • 2026-03-24 22:57 UTC

Oh so you only support local and ethical rape and murder. That's so noble

u/thesanguineocelot • 5 points • 2026-03-24 22:49 UTC

This is one of the worst arguments I've ever heard supporting AI, well done.

u/Wise_Juggernaut_3079 • -1 points • 2026-03-24 22:50 UTC

I'm saying both are bad....

u/Brekldios • 2 points • 2026-03-24 23:15 UTC

both aren't bad the same way or for even the same reason.

saying both are bad for the environment downplays that at the very least we can eat animals, while i can't eat sora videos AND the water is gone.

If the water goes to a cow, at least i can eat that cow and the water returns either to me or the earth via their piss.

However when AI datacenters return water, its polluted, yucky, undrinkable. While again producing nothing of value.

u/SolaceGB • 3 points • 2026-03-24 22:49 UTC

![[gif]](giphy|ah33NGwdLWGAJEtpnF)